WAR SCANDALS ARE HATCHING

Senator Caraway of Arkansas has made a number of bitter attacks upon Attorney General Daugherty, and the latter has replied that he would like to enjoy the privilege of sitting with Congress, by virtue of the fact that he is a Cabinet member, in order that he might make a reply in the same forum where he has been assailed. The statements of Senator Caraway and a number of other members of the two branches of Congress, have evidently penetrated under the hide of the Attorney General, and he has struck back against what he calls a political attack with the report that "influential personages" in the Wilson administration put the muffer on the investigation of scandals that will soon be notorious. "Two cases of the first magnitude are ready for prompt submission," declares Mr. Daugherty. Naturally this "promising" statement has excited the wildest speculation, and profiteers in all parts of the country have thought their crimes forgotten, are doubtless fearful that they may be hauled into the spotlight.

IS THERE A NIGGER IN THE WOODPILE?

Washington gossip has for months made a good deal out of transactions in connection with the seizure and disposal of German property during the war. Some of the very highest officials in the last Administration are openly connected with the affairs of the institutions that were recognized after the Germans were squeezed out. They defend themselves by declaring that they officially treated the enemy property in the manner contemplated by the law under which it was seized. Then they explain their present enjoyment of "soft snaps" on the ground that they were not brought into the transactions until Americans came into possession of the properties, and until they had retired definitely from official life. The former officials assert that selfish German interests are now seeking to besmirch them in order to secure the return of the property they properly lost through the conduct of the war. Evidently the Attorney General does not take a very rosy view of the situation, and his promises of prosecutions are generally construed in Washington as a forecast that Mr. Daugherty is preparing to uncover "a nigger in the woodpile."

HOUSE NAGS THE SENATE

Criticism has been heard in the lower House of Congress because of the delays in handling public business in the Senate. The tariff bill is the particular source of worry to the House, and that body wants the Senate to deliver the law p. d. q. Naturally there is a lot of sentiment favoring the speeding up of this particular legislation. Undoubtedly President Harding is as much disturbed about the delay in passing a tariff law as anyone in the country. Senators who have the bill in charge are chafing under the delays of debate. The only difference between this bill and its predecessors is that the delays are stretched out longer. That is due to the fact that the war made new conditions that upset all tariff-making precedents. But it is only fair to the rate to recognize the fact that every tariff bill that has ever been sent to it was little more than a hodge-podge affair thrashed out in the committee of the House whose main business was to reconcile all the traders and beneficiaries interested in the different schedules. The debate in the House is mere camouflage and lasts but a few hours. As a result the Senate practically creates "the bill," does all the deliberating, brings out all the criticism in its debates, and in short furnishes all the "gray matter" that finally determines whether there is or is not common sense in the legislation. While the Senate is going through these processes of constructive hard-labor it comes with mighty roar grace for the shirking House to nag the upper body.

WOOD IMPRESSED WITH HIMSELF

The University of Pennsylvania has refused to further extend its leave of absence to General Leonard Wood, with the result that President Harding and secretary of War Weeks have advised him that "while they would be glad" to have him remain in the Philippines that they can not ask him to remain in the Islands if he thinks his duty to the "verily should decide him to return to the United States. Reports from Manila indicate that General Wood is so satisfied with himself that he will remain at his present post until the last of the year. The Philippine colony in Washington has an idea that General Wood will stay even longer—in fact as long as he is permitted to remain. A delegation of Filipinos is now

GOULD'S ACADEMY

On Wednesday, Gould's was defeated by Gorham High by a score of 9 to 0. Gould's showed a complete reversal of form since the South Paris game. Weak pitching, loose fielding and a conspicuous absence of base hits combined to give Gorham an easy win.

Norway headed Gould's in the ninth inning of a game that was exciting but loosely played. For a time it seemed that Gould's had the game cinched but loose infield play coupled with poor stick work enabled Norway to finally win out.

RESOLUTIONS

With hearts touched with sadness we are compelled, by the dispensation of the Great and Allwise Ruler of the Universe, to record the death of our brother, Samuel Augustus Eames.

Therefore, be it resolved, that by the death of our brother we lose a worthy and true Mason, an honored citizen, and a useful member of society, a man faithful to every duty as he saw that duty, for his work and every relation of life.

Resolved: That our sympathy be extended to the bereaved widow and family of our departed brother, assuring them that fraternal ties still bind us.

Resolved: That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Lodge and a copy sent to the mourning widow and published in the Oxford County Citizen.

I. H. WIGHT,
H. C. ROWE,
A. C. FROST,
Committee on Resolutions.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hastings and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Thurston were in Wilton the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmon Jordan of Mechanic Falls were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jordan, Sunday.

The play, "A Couple of Million," was presented to a good sized audience at Odeon Hall last Friday evening. Every part was well taken. The school orchestra furnished music for the evening and for the dance which followed the play.

Friends of Robert Hanson will be interested in the following announcement, which we copy from the Bowdoin Orient:

'1818 ELEOTH SEVEN JUNIORS
Honorary Senior Society Announces
Next Year's Members

At a meeting of the Ibis last week the following seven Juniors were elected to membership for next year: Robert D. Hanson, Emerson W. Hunt, William B. Jacob, Karl R. Philbrick, George H. Quinby, Frederick King Turgoon, and Walter R. Whitman.

TRIBUTE

Dorothy Ernestine Stearns, daughter of Minnie Godwin and Adelmars Stearns, passed to the Higher Life May 12, at the age of fourteen. Sweet in disposition and of an affectionate nature which was manifested in a marked degree in her love for little children, who in return loved her, she had many friends and schoolmates who will miss her cheery greeting. She was a member of the Congregational Sabbath School and the chorus choir. When but five years old her mother was called to the Heavenly Home and she with her sister and brother have received the tenderest care from her grandmother and father.

Shortly before passing away she looked up to her grandmother and said, "I think Jesus wants me now and I am going to sleep to awake in Paradise."

The funeral services were at the home Saturday afternoon and as she lay at rest so peacefully among the wealth of flowers, the expressions of the love of her friends, classmates, and members of the school, the Sunday School and chorus choir, one could not but say "How beautiful to be with God and mother."

Rev. S. T. Achenbach, her pastor, had charge of the service. Rev. W. C. Curtis, a former pastor, offered prayer, and Rev. J. H. Little read selections of scripture.

The funeral was in charge of Mr. S. S. Greenleaf. Four of her girl mates acted as bearers.

THE ROSE BEYOND THE WALL

Near shady wall a rose once grew,
Budded and blossomed in God's free light,

Watered and fed by morning dew
Shedding its sweetness day and night.

As it grew and blossomed, fair and tall,
Slowly rising to loftier height,

It came to a crevice in the wall,
Through which there shone a beam of light.

Onward it crept with added strength,
With never a thought of fear or pride;

And it followed the light through the crevice length,
And unfolded itself on the other side.

The light, the dew, the broadening view,
Were found the same as they were before;

It lost itself in beauties new,
Breathing its fragrance more and more.

Shall claim of death cause to grieve,
And make our courage faint or fall?

Nay, let us faith and hope receive—
The rose still grows beyond the wall.

Scattering fragrance far and wide,
Just as it did on days of yore;

Just as it did on the other side;
Just as it will, forever more."

CHRISTUS CONSOLATOR

Beside the dead I knelt for prayer,
And felt a presence as I prayed.

Lo! it was Jesus standing there,
He smiled: "Be not afraid."

"Lord thou has conquered death we know;
Restore again to life," I said.

"This one who died an hour ago,"
He smiled, "She is not dead!"

"Asleep, then, as thyself didst say;
Yet thou canst lift the lid that keep

Her prisoned eyes from ours away,"
He smiled: "She does not sleep."

Nay, then, though haply she doth wake
And look upon some fairer dawn,

Restore her to our hearts that ache.
He smiled: "She is not gone!"

Alas! too well we know our loss
Nor hope again our joy to touch
Until the stream of death we cross,
He smiled: "There is no such!"

"Yet our beloved seem so far
The while we yearn to feel them near,
Albeit with Thee we trust they are,"
He smiled: "And I am here."

Dear Lord, how shall we know that they
Still walk unseen with us and Thee,
Nor sleep, nor wander far away,
He smiled: "Abide in me!"

THE J. E. JONES LETTER

WAR SCANDALS ARE HATCHING

Senator Caraway of Arkansas has made a number of bitter attacks upon Attorney General Daugherty, and the latter has replied that he would like to enjoy the privilege of sitting with Congress, by virtue of the fact that he is a Cabinet member, in order that he might make a reply in the same forum where he has been assailed. The statements of Senator Caraway and a number of other members of the two branches of Congress, have evidently penetrated under the hide of the Attorney General, and he has struck back against what he calls a political attack with the retort that "influential personages" in the Wilson administration put the muffer on the investigation of scandals that will soon be notorious. "Two cases of the first magnitude are ready for prompt submission," declares Mr. Daugherty. Naturally this "promising" statement has excited the wildest speculation, and profiteers in all parts of the country have thought their crimes forgotten, are doubtless fearful that they may be hauled into the spotlight.

IS THERE A NIGGER IN THE WOODPILE?

Washington gossip has for months made a good deal out of transactions in connection with the seizure and disposal of German property during the war. Some of the very highest officials in the last Administration are openly connected with the affairs of the institutions that were recognized after the Germans were squeezed out. They defend themselves by declaring that they officially treated the enemy property in the manner contemplated by the law under which it was seized. Then they explain their present enjoyment of "soft snags" on the ground that they were not brought into the transactions until Americans came into possession of the properties, and until they had retired definitely from official life. The former officials assert that selfish German interests are now seeking to bamboozle them in order to secure the return of the property they properly lost through the conduct of the war. Evidently the Attorney General does not take a very rosy view of the situation, and his promises of prosecutions are generally construed in Washington as a forecast that Mr. Daugherty is preparing to uncover "a nigger in the woodpile."

HOUSE NAGS THE SENATE

Criticism has been heard in the lower House of Congress because of the delays in handling public business in the Senate. The tariff bill is the particular source of worry to the House, and that body wants the Senate to deliver the law p. d. q. Naturally there is a lot of sentiment favoring the speeding up of this particular legislation. Undoubtedly President Harding is as much disturbed about the delay in passing a tariff law as anyone in the country. Senators who have the bill in charge are chafing under the delays of debate. The only difference between this bill and its predecessors is that the delays are stretched out longer. That is due to the fact that the war made new conditions that upset all tariff-making precedents. But it is only fair to the Senate to recognize the fact that every tariff bill that has ever been sent to it was little more than a hodge-podge affair thrashed out in the committee of the House whose main business was to reconcile all the traders and beneficiaries interested in the different schedules. The debate in the House is mere cannon-fodder and lasts but a few hours. As a result the Senate practically creates the bill, does all the deliberating, brings out all the criticism in its debates, and in short furnishes all the "gray matter" that finally determines whether there is or is not common sense in the legislation. While the Senate is going through these processes of constructive hard-labor it comes with mighty poor grace for the shirking House to nag the upper body.

WOOD IMPRESSED WITH HIMSELF

The University of Pennsylvania has refused to further extend its leave of absence to General Leonard Wood, with the result that President Harding and Secretary of War Weeks have advised him that "while they would be glad" to have him remain in the Philippines that they can not ask him to remain in the Islands if he thinks his duty to the country should decide him to return to the United States. Reports from Manila indicate that General Wood is so satisfied with himself that he will gladly remain at his present post until the last of the year. The Philippine colony in Washington have an idea that General Wood will stay even longer—in fact as long as he is permitted to remain. A delegation of Filipinos is now

GOULD'S ACADEMY

On Wednesday, Gould's was defeated by Gorham High by a score of 9 to 0. Gould's showed a complete reversal of form since the South Paris game. Weak pitching, loose fielding and a conspicuous absence of base hits combined to give Gorham an easy win.

Norway headed Gould's in the ninth inning of a game that was exciting but loosely played. For a time it seemed that Gould's had the game cinched but loose infield play coupled with poor attack work enabled Norway to finally win out.

RESOLUTIONS

With hearts touched with sadness we are compelled, by the dispensation of the Great and Allwise Ruler of the Universe, to record the death of our brother, Samuel Augustus Eames.

Resolved: That our sympathy be extended to the bereaved widow and family of our departed brother, assuring them that fraternal ties still bind us.

Resolved: That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Lodge and a copy sent to the mourning widow and published in the Oxford County Citizen.

Committee on Resolutions.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hastings and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Thurston were in Wilton the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmon Jordan of Mechanic Falls were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jordan, Sunday.

The play, "A Couple of Million," was presented to a good sized audience at Odeon Hall last Friday evening. Every part was well taken. The school orchestra furnished music for the evening and for the dance which followed the play.

Friends of Robert Hanscom will be interested in the following announcement, which we copy from the Bowdoin Orient:

"THIS ELECTS SEVEN JUNIORS

TRIBUTE

Dorothy Ernestine Stearns, daughter of Minnie Godwin and Ademar Stearns, passed to the Higher Life, May 12, at the age of fourteen. Sweet in disposition and of an affectionate nature which was manifested in a marked degree in her love for little children, who in return loved her, she had many friends and schoolmates who will miss her cheery greeting. She was a member of the Congregational Sabbath School and the chorus choir. When but five years old her mother was called to the Heavenly Home and she with her sister and brother have received the tenderest care from her grandmother and father.

Shortly before passing away, she looked up to her grandmother and said, "I think Jesus wants me now and I am going to sleep to awake in Paradise."

The funeral services were at the home Saturday afternoon and as she lay at rest so peacefully among the wealth of flowers, the expressions of the love of her friends, classmates, and members of the school, the Sunday School and chorus choir, one could not but say "How beautiful to be with God and mother."

Rev. S. T. Achenbach, her pastor, had charge of the service. Rev. W. O. Curtis, a former pastor, offered prayer, and Rev. J. H. Little read selections of scripture.

The funeral was in charge of Mr. S. S. Greenleaf. Four of her girl mates acted as bearers.

THE ROSE BEYOND THE WALL

Near shady wall a rose once grew,
Budded and blossomed in God's free light,
Watered and fed by morning dew
Shedding its sweetness day and night.

As it grew and blossomed, fair and tall,
Slowly rising to loftier height,
It came to a crevice in the wall,
Through which there shone a beam of light.

Onward it crept with added strength,
With never a thought of fear or pride;
And it followed the light through the crevice length,
And unfolded itself on the other side.

The light, the dew, the broadening view,
Were found the same as they were before;
It lost itself in beauties new,
Breathing its fragrance more and more.

Shall claim of death cause to grieve,
And make our courage faint or fall?
Nay, let us faith and hope receive—
The rose still grows beyond the wall.

Scattering fragrance far and wide,
Just as it did on days of yore;
Just as it did on the other side;
Just as it will, forever more."

CHRISTUS CONSOLATOR

Beside the dead I knelt for prayer,
And felt a presence as I prayed.
Lo! it was Jesus standing there,
He smiled: "Be not afraid."

"Lord thou has conquered death we know;
Restore again to life," I said.
"This one who died an hour ago,"
He smiled, "She is not dead!"

"Asleep, then, as thyself didst say;
Yet thou canst lift the lid that keep
Her prisoned eyes from ours away,"
He smiled: "She does not sleep."

Nay, then, though haply she doth wake
And look upon some fairer dawn,
Restore her to our hearts that ache.
He smiled: "She is not gone!"

Alas too well we know our loss
Nor hope again our joy to touch.
Until the stream of death we cross,
He smiled: "There is no such!"

"Yet our beloved seem so far,
The while we yearn to feel them near,
Albeit with Thee we trust they are,"
He smiled: "And I am here."

Dear Lord, how shall we know that they
Still walk unseen with us and Thee,
Nor sleep, nor wander far away?
He smiled: "Abide in me!"

Reverent W. Raymond.
Copied from an old Bontal.

CARD OF THANKS

May the Divine Master come into the hearts of each and everyone who gave of their best to help us in the going away of our dear Dorothy.
M. A. Godwin,
A. J. Stearns and family.

SOUND BUSINESS SENSE

The real business men of America—those who realize that if we are to regain our lost foreign trade we must buy from Europe, else we cannot sell to Europe—are deeply concerned lest the "American valuation" plan originally proposed in the Fordney tariff bill shall become a law overnight.

The American valuation idea is born of the dreams of high protectionists who believe in the outworn theory that the way to restore and maintain prosperity in the United States is to erect a Chinese wall of tariff duties about it. American business men who have made a practical study of the problems involved in the tariff system are convinced that the valuation scheme would wreck what little chance we may have to regain our foreign markets and to get back to normal in production of goods for export.

One of the most telling arguments on this subject emanates from the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Embodied in a telegram to the President and to Chairman McCumber of the Senate finance committee, the Association's position is thus summed up:

"You will recall that the House enacted the Fordney bill without debate on the floor touching the provisions in Section four hundred two, commonly referred to as American valuation. The bill, now in the hands of the Senate finance committee, has met with general objection from farmers, merchants, manufacturers, bankers and the general consuming public, not through any disposition to deny adequate protection wherever needed to American labor and industries, but because American valuation, so-called, is regarded as a devious, cumbersome and difficult administration and as conceived in the interests of those who desire to foster monopolistic control of prices.

"If the Senate finance committee now should report the Fordney tariff bill, changing the basis of assessment back to the foreign valuation, and the Senate should adopt the measure as reported, there is a possibility that when the bill goes to conference the American valuation plan in some form may be restored, and upon acceptance of the conference report by the Senate and the House we may face the amazing spectacle of having this, the most notable departure from the established custom procedure of the country, actually become law without ever having been discussed on the floor of either house of Congress.

"The opposition to American valuation is so widespread and spontaneous that we are moved to ask you in the interests of the whole people to exert your influence to prevent the possibility of so amazing an occurrence as we have outlined. It is our judgment as distributors that the effect of American valuation must be to materially increase the cost of living.

Just now the prices of farm products are recovering somewhat and the disparity between the prices of farm products and manufactured goods is to that degree decreased. It would be a sad mistake now if Congress by the enactment of American valuation should send the prices of manufactured products once more far out of keeping with farm products. In view of the fact that the country has spoken so emphatically against American valuation may we point out that it would be a serious mistake to enact section four hundred two without debate on the floor of the Senate?

That argument is not advanced by the Democratic party. It is not the opening gun in a tariff reform campaign. It is signed by J. Isidor Straus, president, and Philip LeBoutillier, chairman, of the tariff committee of an organization representing sterling American business men in every quarter of the country. Its appeal is solely on the ground of the restoration of normal trade conditions. These men care nothing for politics in the ordinary acceptance of the term. What they are interested in is the upbuilding of American trade and they know it cannot be built unless every artificial impediment to its expansion is removed.

MAINE EXPERT'S ATTACK DENIED BY POTASH MAN

Secretary of Producers' Association Answers Frank E. Coombs, Defends American Product, Declares Farmers' Loss Would Be Greater by Stifling Competition

Frederick W. Brown, of Washington, D. C., executive secretary of the United States Potash Producers' Association, when shown today a letter written by Frank E. Coombs, secretary manager of the Aroostook Potash Growers' Association, declared that the letter "was evidently prepared without a full knowledge of the facts concerning the American Potash industry."

"In discussing the proposed tariff on potash, Mr. Coombs claimed that American potash contained impurities injurious to plant life, that American producers could not begin to meet the demand of farmers in this country, and that the proposed tariff would be a burden to Maine potato growers. In answer Mr. Brown said:

"The normal consumption of potash in this country is about 250,000 tons of actual potash. The American producers in 1918 turned out 54,000 tons and in 1920 about 50,000 tons and have at present a producing capacity in plants now in existence of at least 75,000 tons, with an almost unlimited possibility of expansion if the industry is assured that it will not be swamped by German importations.

"The statement that American potash contains borax or any other injurious ingredients has no foundation. In 1918 a small quantity of American potash produced by one of the seventy-odd American plants, did contain borax in quantity sufficient to cause damage. This condition was remedied as soon as discovered, and since that time not a pound of American potash has contained any injurious ingredient. The potash produced in Utah, Nebraska, New Jersey, Maryland and at most of the California plants never contained any injurious impurity and to say, as Mr. Coombs says, that nine-tenths of American production is bad is a libel without the slightest basis. German knight in fact contains more borax in proportion to its potash content than any American potash."

"American producers are asking for a temporary protection for only five years, and have agreed that this tariff protection shall diminish from 2 1/2 cents a pound the first year to 1 1/2 cent a pound the fifth year, after which potash shall be free of duty. This seems to them a reasonable request. The representative of the New Jersey potato growers testified before the Senate Committee that this duty when at its height would increase the cost of growing potatoes by only two cents a bushel. "Surely it is worth while to American farmers to preserve this American industry at so small a cost when the alternative is a European monopoly which makes no secret of its determination to make our farmers pay every cent it can extort from their potash. The American potash industry is the only defense of American farmers against a ruthless and embittered foreign monopoly which for the moment is able to sell here at a ridiculous price because of the falling exchange rate of the mark."

"The American potash industry has $30,000,000 invested in plants, and with this moderate, temporary and diminishing protection will be able to get on its feet and at the end of the five-year period meet foreign competition in an open market. It is the honest belief of the potash producers that with this tariff our farmers will pay less for their potash, than they will if the duty falls or is removed, and the American industry is crushed, and our farmers are left at the mercy of the notorious German syndicate."

MRS. FLORA K. ALLEN

William A. Lucas received word Friday morning of the sudden death of his sister, Mrs. Flora K. Allen, wife of Lucius F. Allen of Livermore Falls, who suffered a paralytic shock Thursday forenoon and failed until she passed away early Friday morning. Mrs. Allen was born in Canton on Sept. 15, 1857, the daughter of Samuel Lucas and Almira Decoster Lucas. She became the wife of Lucius F. Allen in 1877. They had two children, Pearl E. For twenty-two years the family have lived at Livermore Falls. Mrs. Allen was a charter member of Penomah Rebekah Lodge, but at the time of her death was a member of Charity Lodge of Livermore Falls. ### BALTIMORE WOMAN'S MESSAGE TO MOTHERS

At 320 W. Hayward Ave., lives Mrs. Henry Johnson, who a few weeks ago wrote what may be termed a good message to all mothers. She said: "I have used Dr. True's Elixir for more than ten years and know it is good." She used Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, to rid her children of worms. There is hardly a child but what needs Dr. True's Elixir, for they all usually have worms when growing up. Mrs. Johnson appreciates what Dr. True's Elixir accomplishes. Your children will be in better health through its use.

Symptoms to watch: Constipation, offensive breath, slow fever, biliousness, pains in stomach, red points on tongue, swollen upper lip, starting during sleep. 40c-60c-$1.20.

Dr. F. E. Wheeler and family moved Tuesday to their new home at 60 Burleigh Street, Waterville, and Dr. Raymond and family of South Paris will take possession of the Wheeler house, which, as previously stated, he purchased earlier in the season. The removal of Dr. Wheeler from the community is a distinct loss both as a prominent citizen and a skillful physician. He is broadly educated, a graduate of Oakland High School, Westbrook Seminary and St. Lawrence Divinity School, from which he was ordained to the Universalist ministry, holding two or three successful pastorates. On account of family conditions it seemed best for him to study for a physician, and he entered the Maine Medical School, after graduating he spent a year in a hospital at Providence, R. I., and then came to West Paris, and built the handsome house on Main street which he and Mrs. Wheeler have since occupied. During these years he has held a large and successful practice of extensive experience, being examining physician for 15 different insurance companies. Has attended a thousand obstetric cases and served in the various capacities expected of the all-around country physician of dentistry, surgery and medical advice, and has always been ably assisted in an emergency case at the office by Mrs. Wheeler, who was a registered nurse before her marriage. Dr. Wheeler enlisted into service when the call came and went overseas, where he was in charge of a hospital, remaining away eighteen months. Mrs. Wheeler, not wishing to be idle, entered a woman's hospital in New York City and served as nurse for nearly a year. Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler's relations with the work of the community and the social life of the town have always been pleasant and helpful, and especially does their removal come as a loss to the Universalist church with which he has been more or less identified for nearly 30 years, and where for the past 20 years he and Mrs. Wheeler have been regular attendants, his early training making him especially companionable to the ministers in charge, and ready to see the need of kindly service. That the Wheeler family have been popular and their removal deeply regretted has been shown by the social functions held in their honor during the past two weeks, beginning with a surprise party and banquet given them by physicians of the surrounding towns. Secondly, when Mrs. George Devine entertained the Jolly Twelve whist club in honor of Mrs. Wheeler, who was their president, Mrs. Wheeler being presented with an electric station. Another pleasant little party was given by Lewis J. Mann at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Tuell, in honor of their daughter Dorothy, when fourteen little girls were entertained, and Miss Dorothy was presented with a boudoir lamp and a sum of money as a parting gift. Thursday evening at Centennial Hall Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler were given a community reception. The hall was prettily decorated, the color scheme being pink and white, the flowers being pink and white carnations. Those who assisted Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler in receiving were Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Packard, Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Aldrich, Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Mark-

ley. After a brief musical program, Rev. H. A. Markley presented Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler on behalf of the community an elegant electric parlor lamp and a good sum of money with a long list of the names of the friends. The lamp being chosen especially to signify the thought that they might always sit in the light of old friendships. Mr. Markley referred to the years of service and friendship between the physician and family and their friends, to which Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler both touchingly responded. On Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Mann, about twenty people were entertained as a final parting with their much loved friends.

Austin Fremont Hollis passed away very suddenly Wednesday afternoon when working on the highway at North Paris. He had complained of his stomach not feeling well, but did not consider it anything serious. He suddenly became unconscious and lived only a few moments after being carried into the house of C. B. Stevens. A physician was summoned but to no avail. Mr. Hollis suffered an attack of acute indigestion and came near heart failure early in the winter and it is thought this was similar. Mr. Hollis was born in Sumner, July 25, 1861, the son of Luther and Harriet (Fletcher) Hollis. He was united in marriage with Miss Harriet Biebee in August, 1886. Besides the widow he is survived by one son, Harold Hollis, and three little granddaughters, also two brothers, A. T. Hollis of West Paris and Luther Hollis of South Paris, and a half sister, Mrs. Lois Cobb of Kennebunk. Mr. Hollis has resided in South Paris and on Elm Hill, but more than fifteen years ago he purchased the old home place on Sumner Hill and has lived there since until last fall when he sold and came to Trap Corner. He was planning to buy a home in West Paris when he could find a desirable one. Mr. Hollis was a Republican in politics and was prominent in the political offices of Sumner. He was a member of Mt. Mead Lodge, Star Lodge, F. and A. M., of Buckfield, and Union Grange of East Sumner. Each order sent representatives. The bearers were from Mt. Mead Lodge and the honorary pall bearers were from the Buckfield Masonic Lodge. Rev. F. M. Lamb of Canton officiated at the funeral.

CHEMISTS DEVISE TESTS TO DETECT REMADE MILK

The increased use of remade milk and cream—that is, milk and cream made from powdered or condensed milk and sweet-cream butter—has made necessary some method by which they may be distinguished from the natural products. Such a test has been devised by chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture, and it is now possible to detect as little as 10 per cent of remade milk in a mixture with natural pasteurized milk. If milk powder has been used in making the mixture, the amount that can be detected will depend on the degree of heat used in its manufacture.

The test for both milk and cream is based upon the color produced when the washed curd made from them is dissolved in sodium hydroxide. When this curd solution has stood for several hours a characteristic yellow color develops in the samples taken from remade milk and cream or mixtures containing them; samples of the natural products or only slight mixtures do not show it.

Remade milk and cream are whole-some foods if made properly from good, natural milk, but should be sold for what they are, and this test makes it possible for food officials to determine whether or not the consumer is being deceived.

If the plans of Napoleon Oullette Post, No. 24, American Legion, of Rumford are carried out, there will be a Legion "Get-together Day" here on Friday of this week, at which all the Posts in the County will be represented. It is also planned to have the Department Commander and Department Adjutant here to address the meeting.

This day is sort of an initiative to the possible forming of a County organization, such an order having worked most successfully in New York State. The program for the day will be found elsewhere in this issue of the Citizen.

Several changes are to be made in the office force of the Oxford Paper Co. paper mill in the near future, it is reported. Everett Shea has been transferred to the New York office. C. Frank Young is to go to the Portland office of this Company, and expects to move there in June, as soon as his son Maurice, graduates from Rumford High School. Mr. Young will take the position of Arthur Mills, who has been transferred to the New York office. Daniel B. Morris, who was formerly an employee in the Rumford office, and later in the New York office, has resigned. Another important change is that W. R. Bankin, who has been in the employ of the Rumford Falls Light and Water Company for the past three years and a half. Mr. Bankin has resigned his position at the Light and Water Company office, and will take up special duties in the Treasurer's office of the Oxford Paper Company in New York City. It is reported that Percy Davis will take Mr. Bankin's place at the Light and Water Company's office.

Eddie Gauthier is absent from his school work at the High School, helping on the farm during the illness of his brother. Beatrice Beauchene has left school to go to work, and Harry Taylor has left his class at the High School and accepted a position as stenographer in the Realty Company.

William Karparick has been recently elected as captain of the High School Junior baseball team, and Donovan Jenkins has been elected manager.

Mr. Abton Eugene Mainente, Rumford's new band leader, expects to now establish a Rumford Conservatory of Music, of which institution he will be its managing-director, whose private and class instruction can be had on any subject pertaining to music and dramatics. He will devote certain hours, daily, to the giving of free consultation to those wishing his advice upon the choice of subjects and the course of study best to pursue. Mr. Mainente does not adhere to the stereotype method of instruction, but believes in fitting a course of study for the individual, built on sound psychological principles.

A method of study which is interesting as it is instructive. Mr. Mainente, knowing that Rumford by its remote position, is deprived of concerts, recitals, and dramatic performances made possible by visiting artists, will work assiduously towards the giving of as many performances and concerts as feasible, through the development of local talent. Apart from the 103rd Infantry Band, which he hopes to increase to seventy members, he will organize as readily as time permits, the Rumford Symphony Orchestra, The Rumford Singing Society, and the Rumford Dramatic Club, aside from the various bands.

enroute to this country to impress upon Congress the demand of their people for an independent self-government. These men represent every phase of public life in the Philippines and it is fair to assume that they know what they are doing in placing themselves in opposition to their Governor-General, who insists on conservative American rule being continued. General Wood would be doing them a favor if he would get started on his job with the University of Pennsylvania.

BONUS "GROUNDWELLS"

Republican Senators are as insistent as members of the lower House in their support of the soldiers' bonus legislation. Senators Lodge, McCumber, Curtis, and Watson of Indiana, recently called on President Harding to "put it across" with him, but in their "report" to their fellow members of the Senate they did not disclose that they found any support at the White House.

Instead they returned with a lot of facts which they were given to consider as indicative that there were "groundwells" that the public was not so strongly in favor of bonus legislation as some members of Congress assert. The President has certainly given cold comfort to the supporters of the bonus measure, and without his cooperation the leaders in Congress feel that there is very strong probabilities that the bonus measure will not go through this session. And if it does not get by before the Fall elections, what will happen to the politicians when they meet the voters "back home"? On the other hand of the dilemma the American Legion no doubt feels that it is fighting the last fight for the bonus, which must be put through before the adjournment of this session if it is to be saved from being permanently buried.

TAX-EXEMPT SECURITIES

The Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives has reported favorably a proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit the further issuance of tax-exempt certificates. Estimates place the amount of these issues last year at one billion dollars, while perhaps nearly twenty billion dollars worth of the securities are now in existence. Holders of large incomes are putting their money into these securities thereby withdrawing their funds from usefulness in industrial lines. The industrial, as a rule, are not as acceptable as the tax-exempt securities, to those who have great fortunes to invest. Another reason for the proposed constitutional amendment is found in the constant decrease of revenues to the Federal government from large incomes.

INSISTS ON SHIP SUBSIDY

President Harding has made it clear that he expects the present Republican Congress to enact a ship subsidy measure. The American merchant ships are eating up nearly a million dollars a week in net losses, and the Administration feels that this can not continue indefinitely without affecting a country-wide protest. The subsidy contemplates positive assurances from private corporations that they will keep the stars and stripes flying on the ocean, and while the subsidy will be an expensive affair it will not be solely a luxury, since it guarantees not only increased shipping but the extension of our foreign commerce. This is the view taken by the Administration, and to carry out its program the Republican party is asked to guarantee about fifty millions of dollars a year for the subsidy.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

BIGGEST THING IN SCOUTING

General Leroy T. Steward of Chicago is one of the original founders of the scout movement, and a staunch believer in all scouting stands for. In a recent interview he said:

"The boy is the man of tomorrow, our coming citizen, with his responsibilities and definite place in the world. You can't fool him, but you can do wonderful things with the right sort of leadership. The spirit of scouting is bigger even than its first-aid and outdoor craft. Getting an active, growing, eating, noisy boy to be thoughtful and do a good turn daily, to want to be helpful to others, to obey its oath and law—that's the biggest thing in scouting and, indeed, in life."

Speaking of his own interest in scouting, the general said:

"I've spent over forty years of my life in various forms of public service—the army, the police department, the postoffice, the boy scouts, and so forth—and am convinced that nowhere can so much real good be done as with our boys. Scouting is the one thing I expect to give my time to for the rest of my life; to help to build boys into good citizens. Can you, or any other grown-up, find greater opportunity, a more genuine service to be rendered than is within the reach of all of you?"

AROUND BOY SCOUT CAMPFIRE

One of the Most Attractive Features of a Boy Scout Camp is the Campfire, Always Started Without a Match.

GOOD TURN RECIPROCATED

When James Caldwell and Clarence Livingholl, Omaha boy scouts, flagged a train last November on discovering a tree on the track, which would undoubtedly have caused a serious wreck, they made light of their action. It was all in the day's work. There was "nothing to it," just a good turn such as all scouts are pledged to. But the railroad officials didn't see it in precisely the same way. They thought there was a good deal to it. So much so, in fact, that out of gratitude to the scouts who rendered them the service they have offered to build a fine new swimming pool at Camp Gifford, the Omaha scout camp. A suitable marker will be erected in the camp mess hall recording the fine good turn of the railroad as well as the facts of the service rendered by the scouts.

ANOTHER SCOUT HERO

Fire broke out in a tenement house in East Fourteenth street, New York city. Frank Catalano, a fourteen-year-old boy scout, was among the crowd that assembled. "I got through the fire line," Frank says, "on the strength of my scout badge. I heard a woman screaming for her baby, who had been left inside. I couldn't stand that. I wiggled through the smoke along the floor and got the baby." That wasn't all he did, however. Having placed the child in its frantic mother's arms he went back into the building and led a woman and two children safely to a fire escape, the stairs being ablaze. He then guided two more adults out of danger and rescued a dog. Then he went on to school. The excitement was over.

DOINGS OF BOY SCOUTS

Camp sites in New Jersey state forests will be opened next season for use of boy scouts according to an announcement of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

Every year the Kennel club of Philadelphia turns over the proceeds of its annual dog show to some cause that they think worth promoting. This last year it was the local boy scouts who were the beneficiary of the club

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Harriet Field, twenty-eight years old and beautiful, is the social secretary of the Bethel Mrs. J. S. Carter, at "Crowlands." Richard Carter, her husband, is a wealthy man, and Harriet is his only daughter. Harriet is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

CHAPTER II.—Presiding over the tea-cups this summer afternoon, Harriet is profoundly disturbed by the arrival of a visitor. It is Blonnie, a girl who has just come from the city. Blonnie is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

CHAPTER III.—Harriet is again over the appearance of Blonnie. Blonnie is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

CHAPTER IV.—Harriet visits her married sister, Linda Davenport, with whom she had had a very long vacation. Linda is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

CHAPTER V.—Knowing the tender feeling she has inspired in Ward Carter, Harriet is tempted to let him know her position and wealth. She can give her, though realizing she does not love him, Blonnie, the girl who has just come from the city. Harriet is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

CHAPTER VI.—Angered at his wife's too open flirtation with young Anthony Pope, Richard Carter markedly shows his treatment. Harriet is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

CHAPTER VII.—Blonnie puts pressure on Harriet to forward his marriage with Nina, but she makes a very strong objection. Harriet is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

CHAPTER VIII.—In the new home Harriet, with Madame Carter and Nina, settle down for a vacation. In a frank talk with Nina, Harriet learns that Blonnie is unworthiness, but it is a very strong objection. Harriet is a very attractive girl, and is very popular. She is taking a very long vacation at "Crowlands."

Your name, I presume out of a sense of generosity to you. I could have wished," he added, "that you had been similarly generous, and had seen fit to leave me, and leave my daughter alone. I think I must ask you to excuse me," said Richard at the door. His tone was one of absolute suffocation. "I can see no object in your frankness tonight, unless to distress and humiliate Mrs. Carter. My daughter, and not myself, is the one entitled to your confidence, and you are well aware of my feeling where she is concerned! I would to God," said Richard, with bitterness, "that I had never seen your face! Mrs. Carter has been a useful—and indispensable!—member of this family for many years; if there was in her past some unpleasant and painful event, that is her own affair!"

"Not when she marries a man who is unworthy of it," Blonnie suggested, in his pleasant, soft tones. "That is mine!" Richard said, sternly. And he opened the library door. "Good evening!" he said. "Good evening!" Blonnie, with his light, jolting step, crossed the threshold, and Richard closed the door. He took his chair again and reached toward the bell that would have brought Blonnie to summon Nina in turn. But halfway to the bell his resolution wavered, disappeared. Instead, he rested his elbows on the table, and his head in his hands, and there, sounded from his chest a great sigh that was almost a groan.

"Oh, he was tired—he was tired—he was tired! It was all a mess—the boy, the girl, their mother, his own arrangements for their protection and safety. All a mess. She had been beautiful, that girl, with her golden hair in the lamplight, and her white arms a little raised to rest her locked hands on the chair. Like some superb actress of tragedy, some splendid and sullen prisoner at the bar. The slender figure in the dull wrapping of satin, and the white bosom, had looked so young, so virginal, the blue eyes were so honestly frightened and ashamed. And she had been that bolder wife—in his arms! Blonnie, that girl, with all the ugly past dragged up like the muddy bottom of a river, staining and clouding the clear waters. And what a look she had given him, there under the lamp!

"It's a funny code," he mused. "Barbarians, that's what we are, when it comes to women. Nina, Ida, Isabelle, Harriet—all of them pay for the man-made rule! I shouldn't have forced her hand in this business marriage; it was taking an advantage of her. No woman wants to marry for anything but love, and if she had married for love, she would have made a clean sweep of it, all around!"

"I mustn't let her work herself into a fever over all this!" he found himself thinking. But Nina must be the first consideration. He must plan for Nina. He brought his thoughts back resolutely to his daughter must break her engagement now, there was that much gained. And for the journey to Rio—

"But why didn't she tell me!" he interrupted himself, suddenly. The reference was not to Nina. Again he saw the superb white shoulders in the soft flood of lamplight, and the flash of the blue eyes that turned toward Blonnie.

"She could have killed him!" Richard said. "My God! how she will love when she does love!"

Meanwhile, to Harriet had come the bitterest hour of her life. She had reached a crossroads, and with steady fingers and an anguished heart she prepared for the only step that to her whirling brain and shamed soul seemed possible. She must disappear. There was no alternative.

She had harmed them all, they could only think of her now as an unscrupulous and mischievous woman who had by choice entered their lives when they were all in desperate need of wisdom and guidance, who had played her own contemptible game, and added one more hurt to the hurt reputation of the house of Carter.

Harriet got out of her evening gown and into a loose wrapper. She went about somewhat aimlessly, yet the suitcases, spread open on the bed, were gradually filled, and her personal possessions gradually disappeared from tables and walls. Now and then she stopped short, heart sick and trembling; once her lips quivered and her eyes filled, but for the most part she did not pause.

a vague idea that she would sit beside the weeping girl for awhile, one heavy heart close to the other, even if no words could pass between them.

But Nina lay sleeping peacefully, and Harriet, after watching her for a few minutes, went back to her own room. She went to the open window, and stood staring absently out at the dark summer night, the great branches of the trees moving in the restless wind, and the oblong of dull light that still fell from the library window.

She could not see the horror as Richard saw it; she could not see herself as only a mistaken woman, a woman with youth, beauty, and intelligence pleading for her, one problem more in his life, it is true, but only one among many, and not the greatest. She did not see him as he saw himself, his family as the somewhat troublesome, and yet quite understandable, group of selfish human beings in whose perplexities he had always played the part of arbiter.

To Harriet the thing loomed momentous, unforgiving, incalculable. It assumed to her the proportions of a murder. Richard, in her estimation, was not what he thought himself, a somewhat ordinary man in the forties whose life had already held poverty and disillusionment and wholesome disappointment, whose nature had been tempered to humor and generosity and philosophy; to Harriet, he was the richest, the finest, the most deserving of men, and she the adventuress who had brought his name down to shame and dishonor.

Until two o'clock she was wretchedly busy in soul and body. When the last of her personal possessions was packed, and when she was aching from head to foot, she took a hot bath, and went to bed.

Not to sleep. The feverish agonies of shame and reproach held her. She was pleading with Richard, she was talking to Nina—she was making little of it—making much of it—she was saying a reluctant "yes—yes—yes!" to their questioning.

At four o'clock she dressed herself again, half-mad with headache and fatigue, and went out into a world that was just beginning to brighten into faint shapes and colors.

A steamer moved majestically up the river, the smoothly widening wake spread from shore to shore; pink light showed at one cabin window; and into Harriet's somber thoughts came unbidden the picture of a yawning cockpit, stumbling about amid his soot-blackened pots and pans.

With the morning, the peace of a conquered spirit fell upon her. She had thought it all to an ending at last. It seemed to Harriet that never in her life had she thought so clearly, so truly, so bravely. Her duty to Richard, to his children, to Linda; she had faced them without fear and without deception, tasting the humiliations of its bitter drugs, planning the few short interviews that must precede her leaving them all forever.

For Harriet emerged from the furnace the mistress of her own soul. She had been wrong; she had been weak; she had been contemptible. But not so wrong or weak or contemptible as they would think her. She would go on her way now, the braver for the lesson and the shame. And what they thought of her must never shake again her own knowledge of her own innocence.

Go on her way to what? She did not know. But she neither feared what the future might hold nor doubted it. She could make her own way from a new beginning. "But before I go," said Harriet, resolutely, "I must tell him that I'm sorry. And I must ask Nina to forgive me."

She turned, and buried her face in the thick, soft sleeve of her coat. But in the thick, soft sleeve of her coat. But

Political Advertisement WHICH SHALL RULE MONEY OR MEN?

Mr. C. W. Shaw, Secretary,
Brotherhood Locomotive Engineers,
Portland, Maine.

My dear Mr. Shaw:
On March 16th you wrote me that your organization by unanimous vote endorsed me for the office of United States Senator. I highly appreciated this endorsement and your expressions of confidence contained therein. I replied, however, that I was in no sense a candidate for this office.

Since the receipt of your letter more than 10,000 people have endorsed me despite the fact that there was published broadcast in the State my statement that I was in no sense a candidate. I have circulated no primary election petitions. I have solicited no support neither have I directly or indirectly done anything that could be construed as trying to create public sentiment favorable to my candidacy. Therefore, my conclusion is that at least 10,000 people have sought me as a candidate for the office of United States Senator. I believe it my duty under all the circumstances to make the campaign.

The business of the government is the people's business and they have a right to know the principles and purposes of those who ask for support.

The two of large sums of money in our elections has shocked the moral sense of our people. It appears to be the vital and controlling factor. We read from authentic sources that an enormous sum of money was offered for a seat in the United States Senate by a citizen of Pennsylvania; in the campaign for the election of Senator Newberry of Michigan, there was expended a sum equal to the amount of his salary as United States Senator for more than 40 years, as a result of which he was convicted in the courts of Michigan of perjury and corrupt practices, and on appeal, without reviewing the fact, the Court held the law unconstitutional.

Nevertheless a majority of the Members of the United States Senate, including Senator Hale, voted that Newberry had transgressed no law that would render him unfit for that body. The expenditure of large sums of money in elections is destructive of our form of government, poisoning its wells at their source.

The Federal Government is continually encroaching upon the functions rightfully belonging to the states. There is no greater menace than the increasing tendency to conduct many of the affairs of the states by bureaus established at Washington.

Needless for me to say that one of the great problems of the day is the industrial problem. Wages must be kept at that standard where the workers may comfortably maintain themselves and live with independence of spirit and self-respect. They cannot go back to the pre-war standard of living. Allied with the industrial problem is the problem of the deferred compensation belonging to the soldiers. The demand for the soldiers' bonus is a just demand. The service men are entitled to it as a matter of right. We should not attempt to put our industrial house in order until this obligation is fully met.

The Direct Primary, now in successful operation in every northern state, the Initiative and the Referendum and the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people, have received continual criticism at the hands of the reactionaries. They fail to realize that the average man today, by whom I mean the man in the shop, in the store, in the mill, at the forge, in the office and on the farm, is well qualified through habits of reading and study brought on and developed by the general circulation of good reading at an extremely small price, to pass efficiently upon questions relating to government. He needs no one to nominate his candidates. He is able to nominate them himself without the intervention of delegate conventions. He should not be denied the right to petition the legislature under the Initiative and Referendum, for this has always been a sacred right since the inception of our government. He is abundantly qualified to select a man for the office of United States Senator without turning over to the members of the legislature his right to selection.

I believe that a majority of people realize that the future of the Republican Party is along broad, progressive ideas. If they do not, I venture to predict that they will come to a full realization of this fact at no distant day. The progressive believes in a broader life for the average man, in better homes, better working conditions, better schools, wages that will bring independence of thought and spirit, and a larger participation in the affairs of government by all our people. The reactionary believes that the average man is sufficiently provided for as he is, or perhaps better, than he deserves to be. Maine is larger by 300 square miles than all the rest of New England. Maine possesses the best farms to be had at the smallest price of any state in the Union, and a potential water power development matchless in its ex-

The FAT MAN is glad to have his readers send him bits of humor, limericks and clever paragraphs—those things that put everyone in high, good humor and leave one all chuckling inside. The newer, the better, and he will pay at the rate of one dollar a piece for them when suitable for his corner. Unusable contributions will not be returned unless accompanied by addressed stamped envelope. The FAT MAN, Editorial Dept., National Pictorial News, Washington, D. C.

From a Stenboville, Ohio, youngster comes the following:

"Dear Fat Man:

Here is a joke:

"The only time I remember father to be really angry was the day a circus came to town. One of the girls in the dressing room stuck her finger through a hole in the tent, and it happened to hit father in the eye."

"Please take this joke 'cause I want to go to the circus soon."

The youngster received the money for his ticket. The Fat man hopes the circus hits Stenboville, Ohio, before the kid's dad reads this column.

"THANKS, NOT GOING THAT WAY. Church Notice—Evening service 7.30. 'On the road to destruction.' Come and join us."

Mary had a little lamb

You've heard this tale before;

But have you heard she passed the plate,

And had a little more?

Jester.

He: "You like your new dress?"

She: "Oh, I think nothing becomes me more."

He: "Yes—but that would be too daring."—Pithy Paragraph Film.

History Prof.: "Can you tell me what makes the tower of Pisa lean?"

Fat Ida: "I don't know or I'd take some."—School Board Journal.

tent and possibilities. No state has so small a percentage of illiteracy in its farming communities as our own, yet in 1910 Maine had approximately 60,000, 40,000 farms. The population of Maine increased in the last fifty years only 100,000 people. To those who love Maine's history and are devoted to her traditions this want of development, considering our state's wonderful opportunities, must cause no little concern. What is the matter with Maine? Her advancement and development have been arrested by organized politics and organized wealth.

I consider the endorsement of more than 10,000 people a commission to carry my campaign to the people and I shall do so as far as my means will permit.

With sentiments of esteem and regard, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Howard Davies.

MRS. MARY LITTLEHALE

Mrs. Mary Bean Littlehale, widow of the late Jacob Littlehale of Newry, passed away after a brief illness at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Perley Flint, in Bethel, on Monday, May 8, at the age of 85 years.

Mrs. Littlehale was born in Bethel, but after her marriage she lived in Newry till the fall of 1920 when she came to Bethel with her daughter. Her husband died in 1890. Three children were born to them, two of whom survive, Mr. Leslie N. Littlehale of Rockland and Mrs. Perley Flint with whom she made her home. A daughter, Adelia Littlehale Thurston, died in young womanhood, leaving three small children or whom Mrs. Littlehale exerted a mother's tender care and influence.

Mrs. Littlehale was one of those rare personalities which made itself felt in the life of all with whom she came in contact.

Some eleven years ago she had the misfortune to break her hip. Since that time she has, of necessity, lived a very retired life. Always patient and ever thoughtful of those near and dear to her cheerful and trustful, resigned to the will of Him whom it was always her delight to serve her life has left an impression which time cannot efface. A dear lover of children, one of her greatest joys, during her declining years, was found in the companionship of her grandchildren. "To know her was to love her" and a host of friends will long miss her encouraging smile and sympathetic words, yet they rejoice that her cup of happiness is now filled. Conscious to the very last, with her children and other dear ones gathered about her, she slipped quietly and peacefully away, happy in the thought of meeting her Savior and the dear ones gone before.

Truly "Life is all the sweeter that she lived And Heaven is all the happier that she died."

The funeral services were held on Wednesday at the home of her daughter, conducted by Rev. S. T. Achenbach of the Congregational church. The large gathering of relatives and friends and the beautiful floral offerings were indicative of the love in which Mrs. Littlehale was held. The interment was in the family lot in Newry.

"Squaring the Circle." Efforts to "square the circle" date back to remote antiquity. The problem is discussed in the oldest mathematical document extant, the Rhind Papyrus, the date of which is about 2000 B. C.
